

What is the future of traveling according to you?

The future of traveling is going to be a community-virtual experience, the least cool thing about vr traveling is the people who travel with you... no one.

So i think the future is going to adapt to a vr multisession trip, with better graphics and maybe technology so you can feel things.

Also i thinks traveling is going to be more expensive so the people who want to travel are going to choose cheap countries or cheap experiences so they can waste less money.
